To Whom It May Concern:

After making the final decision to sell the business we worked so hard to build, we were faced with the next decision to find the person who we felt could find a home for our business, clients and employees, at the selling price fit for the strong and profitable Internet company in which we built from the ground up. The person we choose was Sean Edelstein of VR Business Brokers.

While Sean was new to the high tech arena of Internet technology, he took a great interest in learning our business in order to help position it properly in the market. He quickly grasped the foundation of our business, philosophies and desires for the future of our business. He leveraged his knowledge to create a comprehensive marketing plan. The execution of his plan helped generate many leads. From those leads, he selected and screened the highest quality of candidates that fit our desired goals.

His efforts helped in securing three offers from different potential buyers. After assisting us in the sensitive issues that surround the buying and selling of a business, we accepted one of the offers.

Sean played a vital role in helping us not only in the sale of our business, but through all the small details that can easily be overlooked. I appreciate the diligence Sean puts behind his efforts, and I am confident you will too.

Sincerely,
